In comparison with normal dried ears, where the cartilage may sometimes be too hard for certain dogs, white, puffed pigs' ears have cartilage that is crispier. Pigs ears are probably the most well-known and popular chewing snack. The size of the ears also makes them the ideal toy, since greedy dogs cannot gobble them down in one bite. These treats keep the dog busy for a long time. The toughness of the cartilage in the ears strengthens the dog's jaw muscles. We have normal pigs' ears, which are suitable for all breeds, as well as jumbo ears for the larger breeds.

The dried pigs' ears clean the mouth and reduce dental plaque. They contain large amounts of protein, which is essential for all dog diets. None of the bacteria that may be present on the fresh ears can survive our long-term, high-temperature drying process. The low fat content makes this a perfectly balanced and healthy snack.
